LEO WARNED TO CLEAN UP ACT

Leonardo was told to stop behaving like a party boy

LEGENDARY director Martin Scorsese blasted his “Wolf of Wall Street” star Leonardo DiCaprio, telling the hunk to quit behaving like an immature party boy or he can kiss his Oscar dreams goodbye!

The two had the tough-love talk after Leonardo complained to Scorsese about George Clooney criticizing the actor for hanging out with a trash-talking crowd. Clooney also implied that Leonardo needs to have people around him who can keep him grounded.

LEONARDO, 39, WAS FURIOUS when he heard about George’s comments – and he was even more steamed when Scorsese, 71, seemed to side with George!

“Martin told Leo he’s as gifted a performer as he’s ever worked with, but at his age he should have won two Oscars by now,” said the source. “Instead, Leo has been shut out by the actors and Hollywood people who cast the Oscar votes.

“He told Leo he should get serious about his life and stop hanging out with hoodlums, trying to bed every girl who catches his eye and going out partying all the time.”

The actor has dated a string of gorgeous women, including supermodels Gisele Bundchen and Bar Refaeli, but has never married. As The ENQUIRER has reported, his mom Irmelin is also getting on his case about settling down and giving her a grandchild.

Despite the pressure, it seems unlikely that Leonardo will change anytime soon. “Leo still loves hitting the clubs and partying it up with his posse,” the source added.

“He likes his life as it is.” by ROGER HITS

The “Twilight” actress and Rob Pattinson have talked about taking off together

KRISTEN STEWART intends to flee Hollywood for the Idaho mountains – and she’s told her on-off lover Rob Pattinson she’s going with or without him, say insiders.

The 23-year-old “Twilight Saga” star feels both of them need to escape Los Angeles’ hard-partying lifestyle, especially after new photos emerged of Rob looking bleary-eyed at a Tinseltown party at which one partygoer can be seen in the background handing a bag of mysterious white powder to another partier, the insiders add.

“KRISTEN’S BESIDE HERSELF WITH worry for Rob,” a close pal told The ENQUIRER. “Their recent attempt at a reconciliation has turned into a joke because Rob’s continued seeing other women and partying. “Kristen has decided enough is enough.”

The two young stars’ romance exploded when she was caught cheating on him with her “Snow White and the Huntsman” director Rupert Sanders in 2012 – and they’ve been struggling to reignite the flame since then. Just days ago, Kristen told Rob, 27, she wanted them to get out of town for good, but he’s still refusing to commit, confided the source.

In the past, they had talked about escaping the big city for a quiet, mountain estate.

“They even said they’d love to buy a couple of horses and grow their own organic vegetable garden,” said the source.

KRISTEN HAS FALLEN IN love with the mountains in Idaho and is said to be looking around the area of Hailey, where Demi Moore has her ranch.

“You rarely hear about Demi’s activities there because the locals are super discreet,” said the source. “Kristen really likes that and sees this move as a brand-new start.”

Hottie Jordan Lane Price

TROUBLED “Home Alone” star Macaulay Culkin has quit the druggie life – thanks to a soap sexpot who’s the mirror image of his ex-girlfriend Mila Kunis!

Culkin, 33, smooched brunette beauty Jordan Lane Price, 25, during a romantic getaway in Paris, and a pal says she’s helped the actor turn his life around. “For the first time in years, Mac looks happy and healthy,” a pal told The ENQUIRER. “Jordan has rescued him from his drug hell, and it’s ironic that she’s a double for Mila, who dumped Mac because of his drug use.”

CULKIN SHOT TO FAME in the 1990 big-screen blockbuster “Home Alone” and its 1992 sequel. After his marriage to actress Rachel Miner failed in 2002, he started dating Mila, and their 2010 split sent Culkin into a downward spiral of drug use.

In 2012, The ENQUIRER published photos of Culkin looking alarmingly thin and frail. We also reported that he was hooked on heroin and the powerful prescription painkiller oxycodone.

While his reps denied our story, sources told The ENQUIRER that the actor was spending upward of $6,000 a month on other dangerous painkillers and had nearly suffered a drug overdose.

But since mutual friends introduced him to Jordan, he seems to have straightened himself out. She starred in the now-canceled reboot of the soap "All My Children," playing Celia, a sexy college coed who, in one scene, lounges around in her underwear as she makes out passionately with a hunky lover.

"Certainly, Jordan being a Mila look-alike got to Mac, and they hit it off instantly," said the source. "While Jordan likes to drink, she's not a drug user, and she's shown Mac that he doesn't need drugs to be happy. She's also made it clear that if he starts using again, she's walking away.

"Mac seems so smitten that he quit drugs cold turkey, and Jordan's helped him move on from Mila."

"Black Swan" beauty Mila, 30, has been dating her former "That '70s Show" co-star Ashton Kutcher since 2012, after he split from ex-wife Demi Moore.

During their French getaway, Culkin greeted Jordan at the airport with a red rose, and the two enjoyed intimate dinners at quiet cafes.

But a pal worries Jordan's fondness for booze, which she's chronicled on her Twitter page, could spell disaster.

"Right now, it's all good between Mac and Jordan," said the source.

"But her love of alcohol combined with Mac's addiction problems could be a recipe for disaster. Still, you can't argue that Mac looks the healthiest he's ever been, and Jordan got him there."

ASHTON & MILA WEDDING JOY!

CELEBRATION follows Kutcher's divorce from Demi

The famous actors beam during the nuptials in St. Petersburg, Fla., on Dec. 7

ASHTON KUTCHER and Mila Kunis are one step closer to walking down the aisle after taking part in her brother's wedding.

The two lovebirds were both members of the wedding party when Mila's brother, Michael Kunis, tied the knot in an elegant black tie ceremony with ballerina Alexandra Blacker in St. Petersburg, Fla., on Dec. 7. For a present, Mila and Ashton reportedly gave the happy couple a 10-day honeymoon trip to Australia.

"Ashton immediately agreed to be in the wedding when Michael asked because he already feels like part of the family," said a close friend.

"AND THE TIMING COULDN'T HAVE been more perfect since Ashton's divorce was finalized shortly before the wedding.

"That made the whole weekend more special because it was the first time that Mila felt Ashton was 100 percent her man."

The former "That '70s Show" co-stars began dating shortly after Kutcher, 35, separated from wife Demi Moore, 51, nearly two years ago.

As The ENQUIRER has reported, 30-year-old Mila had given Kutcher an ultimatum:

Finalize your divorce or else! But by the time the final divorce decree came on Nov. 26, the two were squabbling over a prenup.

As The ENQUIRER reported, the "Two and a Half Men" star wants to protect his $100 million fortune, but Mila resisted because she feels a prenup is a bad omen.

"Ashton reminded Mila about the problems that could arise without a prenup," said the source.

"After listening to his reasoning and being in her brother's wedding, Mila's attitude has softened. They should be able to work out their differences."

Geraldine (right) was house-sitting for her sister Elsa – Rachael Ray's mother – when she went out to feed some birds and could not get back in. The elderly woman collapsed in the freezing cold

ENQUIRER EXCLUSIVE

RACHAEL RAY is caught up in a bitter family feud over the horrifying death of her Aunt Geraldine.

In a heartbreaking tragedy, the Food Network star's 77-year-old aunt died of exposure outside the house of Rachael's mom in upstate New York – because no one had left her a key to get back inside.

The elderly woman had been house-sitting on Nov. 29 when she accidentally locked herself out. Ailing from a respiratory disease, she collapsed before she could get help – and her daughter places the blame squarely on Rachael's mom Elsa Scuderi and the Ray family!

ADDING TO THE BAD FEELINGS, Rachael missed her Aunt Geraldine's Dec. 5 funeral.

"My mother is dead today because the Ray family neglected her," Rachael's furious cousin Gina Mesnick told The ENQUIRER in a blockbuster exclusive interview.

"I want the world to know the truth about them and just how they treat their own family.

"Mom was paid $300 to house-sit for her sister five days a week – but was never given a key. Instead, for some inexplicable reason, a key was given only to someone else who watched the place the other two days. When that person's shift was over, they would let my mom in to begin hers.

"At around 4 p.m. on Nov. 29, Mom – who suffers from chronic obstructive pulmonary disease – went out to feed the birds. Then, when she went to go back in, she must have realized that the door had locked behind her.

"There's security camera footage that shows my poor mom trying desperately to break a window with a rock to get back in as well as to gain access through the garage door by way of a keypad that had been previously disconnected without her knowledge.

"At some point in the evening I suspect that, because of her condition, she had trouble breathing and collapsed in the driveway and basically died there.

"Her body wasn't found until the following morning."

Star's furious cousin tells ENQUIRER RACHAEL RAY'S FAMILY KILLED MY MOM!

Making matters even worse, a distraught Gina charged: "When cops arrived to investigate, Aunt Elsa apparently ranted at them, demanding that they 'get out of my house!'"

A neighbor confided to The ENQUIRER: "Had Geraldine been able to make it the short distance to our home, we would have let her in. But it was brutally cold, with the temperature dipping to just nine degrees, and it seems the poor woman collapsed."

"YOU'D THINK HER FAMILY would have gotten her a 'Life Alert'-type device or something, especially since she was house-sitting alone for long stretches."

The Warren County, N.Y., Sheriff's Office has begun an investigation into the shocking death, Lt. Steven Rachael and husband John Cusimano (left) were both no-shows at her aunt's Dec. 5 funeral

Stockdale told The ENQUIRER.

Meanwhile, attempting to defuse the explosive family feud, Rachael's 39-year-old brother Emmanuel Ray told The ENQUIRER that his heart and Rachael's go out to his cousins, and that their remarks were obviously made in "anger, shock and I'm sure the immense grief at suddenly losing your mom under such horrendous circumstances."

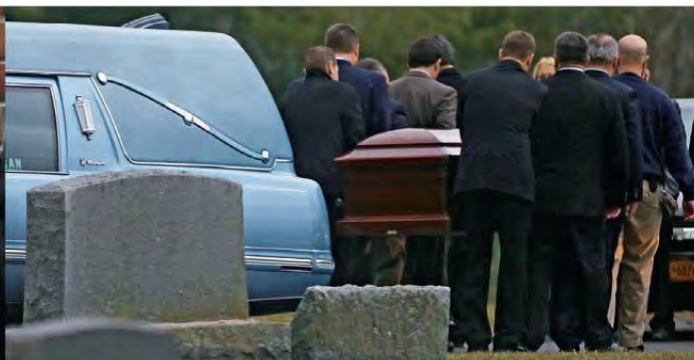

He added that his famous sister "has always tried to help out her family."

But the bad feelings were inflamed when both Rachael and her husband John Cusimano were no-shows at Aunt Geraldine's funeral in Ticonderoga, N.Y.

A representative for the TV star explained that she missed the service because of major work commitments but "paid her respects privately."

However, Rachael's distraught cousin Gina fumed: "I doubt that Rachael shed a single tear over my mom's death."

JET-HIKING ACR

AMBER NOLAN is plane crazy! The 29-year-old travel writer has spent the past year flying around the U.S. for free – by hitchhiking rides on private aircraft.

“As a travel writer, I’ve been all over the world,” says the New York native. “But I hadn’t seen much of my own backyard.”

Determined to see the country in a unique way and raise awareness about the private aviation community, Amber decided to start “jet-hiking” across America.

But scoring a seat on a small plane isn’t always easy.

“I SPEND HOURS CONTACTING PEOPLE,” Amber says. “I go to airports, tell people what I’m doing and wait around. Sometimes it’s days before I find a ride.”

Since beginning her epic adventure, Amber has visited 42 states and more than 250 cities and towns. She got off to a rough start. Early on, she was mugged at a bus station in Detroit and all her stuff was stolen. But it didn’t keep her grounded for long.

“I had to replace my camera, laptop, etc. with lesser quality items from a thrift shop, but I kept going,” the plucky wanderer recalls. “One bad experience doesn’t cancel out the thousands of wonderful times I’ve had and the caring people I’ve met.”

Amber has hitched rides on everything from biplanes to ritzy private jets and one hang glider. She’s even flown a plane herself. Flights have taken her up the Hudson River and past the Statue of Liberty, over the Golden Gate Bridge and along the Rio Grande with wild horses running below, among countless other amazing sights.

“On the ground, I’ve met a Voodoo priestess, traveling magician, been to the Burning Man festival and Iowa State Fair, hiked Glacier National Park, saw the Grand Canyon, climbed a mountain with peace activists, worked on an urban farm, volunteered at state parks, welcomed the new year by watching a Native American turtle dance ceremony, and so many other adventures,” says Amber, who’s planning to write a book about it all.

One of the keys to traveling like this, she adds, is being able to change directions with the wind.

“THE PILOT HAS TO FOLLOW THE WEATHER, and I have to go where they do,” Amber explains in a magazine interview.

“I go wherever the wind takes us. I have to roll with whatever comes my way and try not to plan at all. It leaves room for the unexpected and keeps things interesting.”

“There is such freedom with flying. While you’re in the air, you can forget about earthly stress and just focus on the moment.”

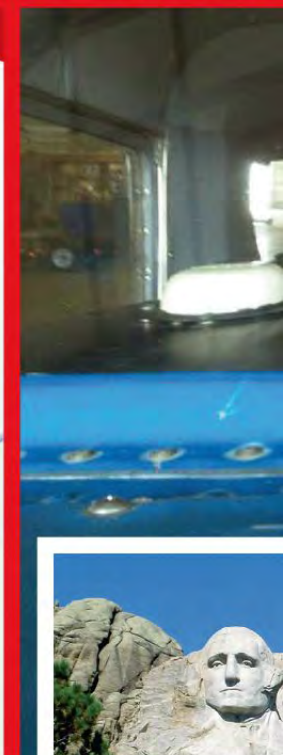

“I go to airports, tell people what I’m doing and wait around”

KHLOE KARDASHIAN may have thought the worst of her marital troubles were behind her, but now her world is being torn apart by rumors that hubby Lamar Odom is secretly GAY!

A video posted on a gossip website on Nov. 22 shows the former L.A. Lakers star and his best pal Jamie Sangouthai performing a rap duet while both are standing bare-chested in a bathroom.

Lamar, who admitted to being drunk when he filmed the video, can be heard slurring as he raps: "And when Khloe's out of town, I still be on the DL." That's short for "on the down-low," a slang reference popular in the black community for a man who acts straight but lives a secret gay lifestyle.

THE INTERNET EXPLODED with comments about the possible hidden meaning of the video, with one viewer calling it "homosexual gangsta crack rap." Others suggest that Lamar and Jamie are MORE than just friends.

"Khloe is devastated," disclosed a family insider. "She thought things were getting better, but now she's being slammed with rumors that Lamar is gay.

"She never understood why Lamar lost interest in having sex with her earlier this year, but if he's living a secret gay life, that could explain it."

Khloe's world exploded this past summer when two women revealed they had steamy affairs with Lamar, who's also reportedly struggled with a crack cocaine addiction. As The ENQUIRER reported, Khloe, 29, was in a panic over the danger Lamar's behavior posed, and her family urged her to get tested for sexually transmitted diseases. And The ENQUIRER recently reported that Lamar, 34, is demanding $10 million from Khloe to end the four-year marriage – or else he'll reveal damaging secrets about the Kardashian family.

For now, Khloe is just praying that she won't have to face another embarrassing scandal.

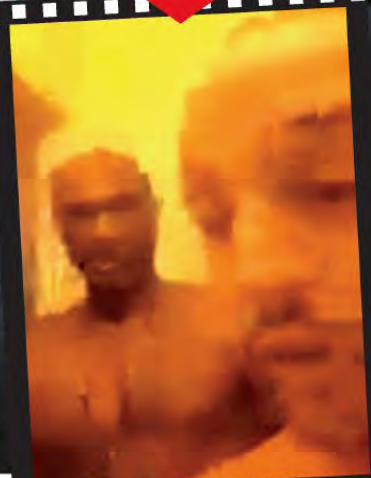

"Khloe is totally supportive of the gay community, but it would be just too much to take to learn that her husband was living a lie with her," added the source. "Unfortunately, nothing would surprise her at this point."

Carrie would love to have a dual acting/singing career like her idol, Dolly Parton

HOLLYWOOD hotshots are wooing Carrie Underwood after her performance in a live telecast of "The Sound of Music" scored a ratings bonanza!

But critics panned her acting, and sources say the country superstar is hesitant to ditch Nashville to pursue an acting career in Hollywood.

"Carrie isn't sure about taking on more acting roles for fear she'll be eaten alive by haters," said an insider.

"But she's the toast of Tinseltown right now. She's gotten offers for doing everything from TV guest spots to feature films, and she's being urged to move to Los Angeles so she can focus on pursuing big-ticket acting roles."

GRAMMY-WINNER CARRIE, 30, stepped into Hollywood icon Julie Andrews' shoes to portray Maria Von Trapp in NBC's three-hour version of the movie musical that won seven Academy Awards.

The program drew an astounding 18.6 million viewers and put the former "American Idol" winner at the top of Hollywood's wish list.

"Hollywood is all about the bottom line, and regardless of how badly her acting was received, Carrie proved she can draw a huge audience," noted the insider.

"But she feels as if she's caught between a rock and a hard place. She's thin-

"Carrie would love to have a dual singing/acting career like her idol Dolly Parton. But she also knows that she'll have a huge target on her back among the same critics who panned her performance."

Referring to Carrie, one reviewer bluntly noted: "It's impossible not to notice that she can't act."

Another pointed out that Carrie "sang well as Maria (Von Trapp) but her acting inexperience was laid bare. She had zero chemistry with her love interest and lacked any intensity or shading."

WORSE YET, ACTRESS KYM KARATH, who played Gretl Von Trapp in the 1965 film, also piled on Carrie, saying: "Love Carrie Underwood but this role is just not right for her. She is lovely, her voice is beautiful but acting is wrong."

Devout Christian Carrie responded to the criticism, posting a message on Twitter that said: "Plain and simple: Mean people need Jesus. They will be in my prayers tonight."

In one bright spot, Julie Andrews offered heartfelt encouragement to Carrie before "The Sound of Music" aired on Dec. 5, saying: "Fifty years later, it's time somebody had another crack at it. I do hope it works for Carrie because she's lovely and I'm a fan. I wish her well."

■ “Hey, what the hell are you doing?” screamed “Mad Men” star JON HAMM – who’d spied a young female extra snapping pants-off pics of him! Said my on-set source: “Jon had to redo a quick scene and needed to get back into the pants he’d worn before. Rather than send him all the way back to his trailer, the wardrobe folks had him change in a makeshift dressing room just off the show’s main set. Then this sneaky girl extra ran up some stairs to an area that overlooks everything and – as Jon dropped trou – she started snapping away. But he heard a noise, looked up and – caught with his pants down – flat-out exploded, yelling, ‘You come down here RIGHT NOW!’” The 20-ish lass tried to duck and run, but was quickly caught by security guards. Zipping up his pants, the star made a beeline for the girl, then stood over her as she erased every R-rated pic of Hamm’s hams. A source of ours, who happened to be sitting right next to RYAN REYNOLDS while lunching at Manhattan's Greenwich Hotel, was busily writing notes with a pricey pen (i.e., NOT a Bic) when the star asked if he could borrow it to make a quick note. "Sure," said our pal, who then waited patiently as Ryan jotted a few notes from a book he was reading. Said our source: "Then it happened – I couldn't believe my eyes! Ryan idly started chewing on the end of my pen as he looked over what he'd written. Then he handed the pen back to me and I immediately said, 'No, you keep it. I don't want it!'" Now here's the kicker, folks – Mr. Big Shot Movie Star actually kept the damn pen, not even bothering to offer the guy a complimentary cup of coffee! You remember me, don't you?" Said My SpyWitness: "Katharine looked the guy coldly in the eye and said, 'NO!' Then she turned her back and began talking to her friends. Looking crushed, the man apologized again for interrupting – and reminded her he'd been her accompanist and vocal coach when she was a young girl. Instead of being polite even if she didn't remember, Katharine snapped that she did NOT know him and did NOT appreciate him interrupting her dinner." Looking like a kicked puppy, the waiter slunk off to the kitchen as McPheeww bitched to her server that she mustn't be bothered again! (In case you're wondering, the guy – who still moonlights as a pro pianist – really was her accompanist/coach...back before she became such a little stinker!)...And how was YOUR week?

BLAKE SHELTON demanded justice when his good friend and mentor, country singer Wayne Mills, was brutally gunned down in a Nashville bar – and now he's going to get it!

A Tennessee grand jury indicted the bar's owner, Chris Ferrell, on second-degree murder charges for allegedly shooting Mills in cold blood during an altercation just days before Thanksgiving.

AS THE ENQUIRER REPORTED last week, Blake angrily vowed to use his fame and money to push for an exhaustive investigation into the slaying. And the "Voice" mentor is said to be satisfied that authorities have acted so swiftly. "Blake feels totally vindicated," said a close source.

"He believed there was enough evidence to charge Ferrell with murder, and he's glad the authorities agree with him." Ferrell surrendered to Nashville police on Dec. 6, and his bail was set at $300,000.

His defense attorney David Raybin declared: "My client denies that he's guilty of any degree of homicide."

But Blake is convinced that a jury will do the right thing and put Ferrell away for a long, long time.

Blake told a pal: "This guy cried that he shot Wayne in self-defense. Witnesses said that he shot him in the back of the head."

"He deserves to rot in jail for what he did!"

The 44-year-old front man for the Wayne Mills Band was killed in Ferrell's Pit and Barrel bar after they got into an argument over Mills smoking in a nonsmoking area, say cops.

Tragically, Mills leaves behind his wife Carol, whom he met more than 20 years ago, and a 7-year-old son, Jack.

SCENE OF THE CRIME: Mills was shot in this Nashville bar

The loss left Blake inconsolable. Not only had he opened for Mills early in his career, he also considered him to be the man who put him on the path to country stardom.

"Blake felt he owed a great debt to Wayne," disclosed the source.

And he was not alone in his love for the man friends considered a "gentle giant." At a deeply moving Dec. 8 memorial service in Mills' hometown of Arab, Ala., friends flocked to pay tribute to him, not only for his music but also for his generosity.

His friend Gary "Sarge" Sargeant, the head of Tennessee's Outlaw

Music Hall of Fame, recalled: "Wayne had a profound impact on everybody he met – the only thing bigger than his talent was his heart!"

He was also praised by his longtime pastor Don Ware who said: "When the tornadoes hit Arab (in April 2011), he was one of the first people to perform (to help raise money for disaster relief)."

Like Blake, Ware demanded justice, telling mourners: "We pray that...the perpetrator will reap what he has sowed."

It now appears that justice will be swift for Ferrell, who was charged with domestic assault this summer. The assault charge was later dismissed.

Blake told a friend: "Nothing is going to bring Wayne back, but at least his family and friends can rest a little easier knowing that Ferrell is going to face a jury."

GORDON RAMSAY

"Hell's Kitchen" star Gordon, 47, has been happily married to Tana Hutcheson for 17 years, but the union almost collapsed after the hotheaded Scot was accused of having a seven-year affair with former "professional mistress" Sarah Symonds. British papers were full of juicy details about their alleged trysts, but Gordon has adamantly denied the relationship. He must have whipped up a convincing tale, because Tana – who's written six cookbooks herself – doesn't seem to be going anywhere. Ramsay was also embroiled in a bitter feud with his father-in-law Chris Hutcheson, whom he accused of plundering more than $2 million from his restaurant empire. The two eventually settled the matter out of court in 2012.

RACHAEL RAY

Rachael, 45, and her yum-o! meals are as wholesome as apple pie, but her hubby John Cusimano is another matter! Before AND after they tied the knot in 2005, the lawyer/musician was reportedly spotted multiple times at the private Manhattan swinger's club Checkmate, where he was seen in the company of female escorts, although Cusimano's lawyer denied the story. In 2006, The ENQUIRER exclusively reported Cusimano's bizarre sex fetishes with acts too degrading to print.

GIADA DE LAURENTIIS

Saucy TV chef Giada, 43, is a little too hot in the kitchen for some viewers, who complain that her scandalous outfits reveal too much flesh. "Someone should do Giada a favor and tell her to button up," blasted one overheated viewer. Another added: "Wearing such revealing clothing diminishes Giada's professionalism and detracts from the real reason for her show." But not everyone is outraged by the "Giada at Home" star's spicy wardrobe. "She's sensual, sexy and a class act," praised New York TV critic Marc Berman. "I love her recipes and winning smile. So what if she bares a little cleavage?"

TODD ENGLISH

Superchef and restaurant owner Todd serves his dishes hot, but, according to his ex-fiancee, he's got ice running through his veins! In 2009, the callous cad – who starred on "Food Trip with Todd English" and "Cooking Under Fire" – ditched his fiancée at the altar. Todd, 53, had planned a blowout wedding with the beautiful and much-younger Erica Wang, a $150,000 extravaganza at the posh St. Regis Hotel. But he disappeared days before the wedding and didn't tell his bride-to-be that he'd had a change of heart until the afternoon of the nuptials... and he did it by phone! Wang claimed Todd then left her on the hook for $12,000 in wedding expenses, cut off her credit cards and kicked her out of their apartment. At the time, English said he was "deeply saddened and remorseful" about the cancellation "but our relationship has not been positive for some time." Since Wang worked for Todd, she also lost her job.

MARTHA STEWART & EMERIL LAGASSE

TV cooking stars Martha and Emeril went over the edge with their promotion of cooking knife sets on the Home Shopping Network. The costly carvers were hyped as genuine Solingen steel, one of the world's best, but consumers who bought the bling-y blades were outraged when they learned they were actually made in China! Martha, 72, and Emeril, 54, got slammed with a whopping $24 million lawsuit in 2012 by a German trade association, which accused them of "willing infringement" of the Solingen trademark by placing it on inferior blades. The slicing and dicing squabble's still going on.

THERE's something steamy cooking in the kitchens of TV's top chefs – and it isn't just food! These culinary champs are serving up deviously delicious dishes of secrets and scandals – and The ENQUIRER is bringing all the behind-the-scenes scoops to the table! Bon appetit!

PAULA DEEN

The ENQUIRER was first to reveal that the Southern-fried TV diva admitted to using racial epithets in a deposition for a lawsuit brought by a former employee of a Savannah, Ga., restaurant owned by Paula and her brother. In the end, the scandal got Paula, 66, booted off the Food Network and rocked her culinary empire to the core. She was said to have lost a whopping $10 million in advertising endorsements, book contracts and TV appearances. And things continued to get worse! It came out that some of the items Paula peddles were produced in Indian and U.S. factories in which some workers are paid rock-bottom wages and exposed to dangerous and, in some cases, deadly working conditions.

ROBERT IRVINE

Liar, liar, your kitchen's on fire! British Food Network "Dinner Impossible" chef Robert got caught fudging his resume in 2008. He made claims that he had a food and nutrition degree from the University of Leeds, was a Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, had worked as a White House chef and helped with the wedding cake for Prince Charles and Princess Diana. But it all turned out to be a load of baloney! The Food Network had to rework his bio, and the Home Shopping Network dropped his endorsed products. Yet somehow, the 49-year-old managed to survive. He's now hosting a new Food Network show called "Restaurant Express," with nine chefs competing to see who gets to open a Las Vegas restaurant.

ANTHONY BOURDAIN

The "No Reservations" host has no reservations when it comes to eating things like sheep testicles, ant eggs and raw seal eyeballs, and he's anything but reserved when talking about the druggie days of his past. The 57-year-old chef, author and TV host admits that in his 30s, he was a junkie who partied on a potpourri of illegal substances, including pot, LSD, cocaine, "magic mushrooms," meth, amphetamines, codeine and heroin! Today, Anthony is as straight as a kebob skewer, except for a glass of wine or a beer now and then.

ENQUIRER serves up SPICY TRUTH

GUY FIERI

The spiky-haired Food Network star of "Rachael vs. Guy: Celebrity Cook-Off" apparently doesn't like gays, according to former associate David Page. Page, a onetime producer of "Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives," said Guy walked off the set when he discovered two men running a restaurant he was visiting were gay. Guy allegedly complained: "You can't send me to talk to gay people without warning. These people weird me out!" A Fieri rep said Fieri did not make the comments attributed to him and "that Mr. Page made these sadly desperate statements says more about him than it does about Guy or anyone on the Food Network team." Page also says Guy, 45, couldn't keep his eyes off the breasts of women on the set, and cameramen had to be careful of what shots they took when a good-looking gal walked by the chef.

INA GARTEN

The Food Network's beloved "Barefoot Contessa" seems as sweet as honey on TV, but she treated 6-year-old leukemia patient Enzo Pereda like week-old leftovers when the Make-A-Wish Foundation asked her to give him cooking lessons. When they asked her a second time, she said "no" again. The 65-year-old claimed she was just too busy – until her shameful behavior wafted around the Internet. At that point, Ina quickly did an about-face and sent word that she'd changed her mind. By then, however, a disappointed Enzo and his parents said: "Thanks, but no thanks," and started working on Plan B – swimming with dolphins!

SANDRA LEE

With more than 25 books published and two shows – “Sandra’s Restaurant Remakes” and “Sandra’s Money Saving Meals” – on the air, Sandra Lee seems to be a runaway success. But the 47-year-old is cooking up trouble with fans for being the live-in girlfriend of New York governor Andrew Cuomo. The politician’s ex is Kerry Kennedy, the daughter of the late Robert Kennedy, and he’d have to go against his Catholic faith to marry Sandra. That’s a bad move for a man who has his eye on the White House! Sandra says she’s the happiest she’s ever been, but judging by the disapproving letters she gets from fans – her followers are steaming over her living arrangements.

BOBBY FLAY

Grill-master Bobby flamed out in public in June 2010 after mysteriously showing up at the scene of a car crash involving sexy “Mad Men” star January Jones. Sources say the actress had just come from a party at a Hollywood hotel, where she was spotted at the bar having drinks with Flay, and she called the married chef to help her out. Fifteen months later, when she gave birth to a son, Xander, she refused to reveal the name of her baby’s father. It has been rumored that Bobby put January’s bun in the oven – even though the 48-year-old cook is married to former “Law & Order: SVU” actress Stephanie March.

ANNE BURRELL

“Secrets of a Restaurant Chef” star Anne never publicly revealed the secrets of her sexuality, until fellow foodie – “Chopped” and “Queer Eye” star Ted Allen – outed her last year! “I’m not going to put a label on Anne, but she is dating a woman right now,” he told openly gay Sirius radio host Romaine Patterson after Patterson admitted she had a crush on Burrell. But Anne insisted she was not outed because she’d never hidden her sexuality in the first place. Her publicist said: “Anne is in a committed relationship and her significant other is a very private woman. It is no secret in the culinary world.”

MARIO BATALI

In 2010, restaurant developer and celebrity chef Mario landed in hot water after getting caught shorting waiters at his eight Manhattan restaurants on their tips. Mario, 53, and partner Joseph Bastianich were slammed with a lawsuit and eventually had to dole out a whopping $5.25 million settlement to 100-plus plaintiffs – all workers at his restaurants – for “skimming” 4 to 5 percent of their hard-earned tips and failing to pay extra for shifts of more than 10 hours.

NIGELLA LAWSON

“Nigella Express” and “Nigella Feasts” star Nigella has been raked over the coals by two former assistants – sisters Elisabetta and Francesca Grillo – who accuse her of having an out-of-control drug habit. The shocking revelations – which include charges that the 53-year-old used cocaine, prescription pills and marijuana on a daily basis for over a decade – came out during the sisters’ trial for fraud in Britain. Lawson admitted some drug use, but denied habitual use. The two women were accused of ripping off more than $1 million from Lawson’s ex-husband Charles Saatchi. But they insist they were allowed free use of a credit card belonging to filthy rich art mogul Saatchi in exchange for keeping their mouths shut about Nigella’s big appetite for drugs.

LOOK out, Gerard Butler – twice-divorced mom of three Sharon Stone is looking to sink her cougar claws into you!

The 55-year-old blonde bombshell is hot on the hunky Scottish actor's tail after the two hit it off Nov. 7 at a Los Angeles party, say insiders.

"Sharon has a major crush on Gerard, and she's pulling out all the stops to snare him in her web," revealed a close source.

The actor with on/off girlfriend Madalina Ghenea

"THEY GIGGLED AND HELD hands at the party after Gerard made the first move by complimenting Sharon on her acting in 'Basic Instinct,' telling her the interrogation scene was the sexiest movie shot ever filmed."

Gerard, 44, was raving about the sizzling scene in the 1992 movie during which Sharon's character is being questioned by cops and distracts them by uncrossing her legs to reveal she's not wearing panties.

Sharon acted just as frisky at the recent bash, where she gushed to fellow partygoers Edward Norton and Jeremy Renner that Gerard "is a hottie."

According to the source, Sharon and Gerard exchanged phone numbers and have been in touch.

"Sharon doesn't want to be Gerard's girlfriend – she just wants a fun fling in a 'friends with benefits' sort of way," the source said. "She's had a crush on him ever since (his 2004 movie) 'Phantom of the Opera.'"

Although Gerard is still involved with his on/off girlfriend, model Madalina Ghenea, Sharon appears up for the challenge.

Said the source: "Having a younger hunk lusting after her is the best self-esteem boost in the world."

The actress wants a "friends with benefits" situation with Gerard, says a source

UNLUCKY-in-love Sandra Bullock may not be single for much longer if one of her former boyfriends has anything to say about it!

Insiders tell The ENQUIRER that former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman – who had a brief romance with the "Gravity" star in 1995 – is poised to toss a pass her way now that he's divorced.

Troy, 47, first fell for Sandra, 49, after seeing her in the 1994 film "Speed." But their fling fizzled shortly after it started because he was living in Dallas while she was based in L.A.

"THEY GOT ALONG WELL when they dated back in the '90s," said a source. "But they now have so much more in common than they did then."

Both are divorced. Troy split from his wife Rhonda in 2011, and Sandra famously dumped her cheating hubby, Jesse James, in 2010. They're also devoted parents. Sandra adopted 3-year-old son Louis in 2010, while Troy has two daughters – Jordan, 12, and Alexa, 11 – from his marriage to Rhonda.

"It doesn't hurt that Sandra loves Sandra's friends think now is the perfect time for Troy to call"

RFK Jr.'s kids aren't having any trouble "curbing their enthusiasm" for their dad's girlfriend, Cheryl Hines. They've even given the blonde actress a new nickname – "Buzz Kill!"

"Cheryl might as well be wearing a 'kick me' sign on her back," said an insider, because Bobby's kids can't stand her no matter how hard she tries to win them over.

BOBBY KENNEDY, 59 – son of former U.S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy – was in the midst of a bitter divorce from his second wife, Mary, when he and Cheryl began dating. Tragically, Mary killed herself in May 2012, soon after Bobby and Cheryl took their romance public.

The couple's four children – Conor, 19, Kyra, 18, Finn, 16, and

Bobby Kennedy with second wife Mary in 2009

Aidan, 12 – "were shattered," the insider said.

Since then, the kids and several other family members have shunned Cheryl.

"Cheryl desperately wants their acceptance, but there's no way she's going to ever win all of them sports," the source continued, noting that Troy is a sports-caster for FOX as well as part-owner of the San Diego Padres.

While Sandra's friends and family are encouraging her to give Troy a chance, she insists she's perfectly happy working on her career and spending all her spare time with her son, according to the source.

"THE TRUTH IS, SANDRA just doesn't trust men," the source added. "She feels as if she has given her all so many times,

The sportscaster got along well with Sandra only to be left with a broken heart."

Still, she may be open to reconnecting with the football Hall of Famer.

"All of Sandra's friends think now is the perfect time for Troy to pick up the phone and call," said the source. "What's he got to lose?"

over," the insider said. "The kids love their father, but they despise Cheryl.

"Whenever she's at a Kennedy family function, the kids call her 'Buzz Kill' behind her back."

Still, the 48-year-old former "Curb Your Enthusiasm" star continues to be on Bobby's arm at family functions, political fundraisers and social events.

In late November, Bobby and Cheryl attended his daughter Kyra's formal society "debut" in Paris at the Hotel de Crillon. Although Cheryl tried to fawn over the teen, Kyra practically ignored her.

And at a late November Hollywood fundraiser, the source

RFK Jr's kids brand his lover 'BUZZ KILL' — source says Bobby's two older children from his first marriage went out of their way to avoid being seated next to her.

Despite the cold-shoulder treatment, Cheryl has no plans to drop her man.

"She turns a blind eye to the family's resentment," the insider added. "She's so crazy about Bobby she'd walk on hot coals to keep him."

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

TOUGH-AS-NAILS “Survivor” contestant Tina Wesson has cheated death several times – but the gritty 52-year-old was helpless to save her beloved son Taylor Collins from a terrible holiday tragedy.

News of his death in a Dec. 3 car crash tore through her like a knife, and it was made even more painful because he might have survived had he been wearing a seat belt.

Police say 25-year-old Taylor, the front seat passenger, was ejected from the vehicle after it spun out of control in Chattanooga, Tenn., hit a garage, flipped upward and struck the front of a house.

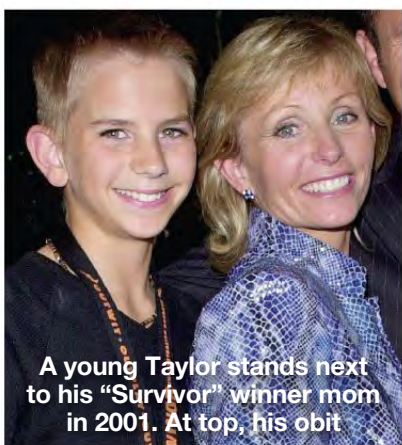

THE DRIVER SURVIVED WITH MINOR injuries, but Taylor later died at a nearby hospital.

"Taylor and a close friend were on their way home from a party when the accident happened," Travis Boles, the grandfather of Taylor's 25-year-old live-in girlfriend Brittany Boles, told THE ENQUIRER.

“The driver was a friend of Taylor and Brittany, who lived above their apartment. He walked away from the accident, but Taylor was not wearing a seat belt and was thrown from the car.

“Taylor never, ever wore a seat belt even though he knew it was illegal. He just never did.”

His grieving mom Tina, a former nurse, outlasted 15 other contestants and won the grand prize of $1 million in the second season of "Survivor:

A young Taylor stands next to his “Survivor” winner mom in 2001. At top, his obit Australian Outback.” She is also a contestant on this season’s “Survivor: Blood vs. Water” with her daughter, Taylor’s sister Katie Collins, 26.

Although Tina is still seen competing on the CBS reality show, the series finished taping on a Philippine island months ago. Both Tina and her daughter were back in the U.S. when the tragedy occurred.

Tina was known on the show for her nerves of steel. One time she risked life and limb in a dangerous flood just to save a can of rice.

The mother of two demonstrated the same bravery in the wake of her son's death.

“The funeral was a couple of days after the accident,” Boles told The ENQUIRER. “And it was amazing watching Tina – she was so strong!”

“Most mothers would have fallen apart at the funeral of their only son, but Tina was the one holding everyone else up with her strength.”

Sadly, the devoted mom was looking forward to watching her son walk down the aisle with Brittany, a registered nurse in Chattanooga, who had lived with Taylor for about six years.

“It will take a long, long time for Brittany to get over this loss because Taylor was the love of her life,” said her granddad.

"They were seriously talking about getting married recently. We all miss Taylor very, very much. This is just devastating."

After the heartbreaking tragedy, Taylor's distraught sister Katie tweeted: "My brother was an amazing soul and a best friend. I wish he were still here."

Michael Strahan's $2M WEDDING BLOWOUT!

MICHAEL STRAHAN is secretly planning an over-the-top $2 million-plus wedding to fiancée Nicole Murphy that will feature everything from gold limos to a galaxy of A-list stars.

Insiders say his spectacular wedding to Eddie Murphy's ex-wife next summer is a blatant attempt to capture the spotlight – a move that could shake up the “Live Kelly & Michael” set.

“Michael is a show-boater – it'll be a super-lavish affair,” declared an insider.

“He wants to get married in Manhattan with a reception that will cost a bundle. He was even saying it would be cool if he and his bride could exchange vows at the top of the Empire State Building!

“HE WANTS TO ARRIVE IN GOLD

limos and plans to have a Who's Who of famous stars, politicians and sports celebrities on the guest list.

“With an exotic honeymoon thrown in, it's estimated that the bash will cost more than $2 million.”

The 42-year-old former NFL player and his fiancée Nicole, 45, have been engaged since 2009 and now “they want their ceremony to be the Wedding of the Year,” said the source.

“This is already reminding people of Star Jones, who turned into a ‘bridezilla’ when she famously took over ‘The View’ with nonstop talk about her wedding.

“Everywhere he goes, Michael is already showing everyone bridal magazines with Post-It Notes sticking out of the pages.”

Meanwhile, his fiancée Nicole is no stranger to extravagant weddings. Back in 1993, she reportedly blew $1.2 million when she walked “Michael wants Nicole's wedding to Eddie to look like a kiddie party in comparison,” said the source.

“It's sure to get massive news coverage, and that's what Michael wants – but it's certain to rub Kelly's crew the wrong way.”

Now Kelly's team at Live! are concerned that the upcoming nuptials will dominate the gabfest.

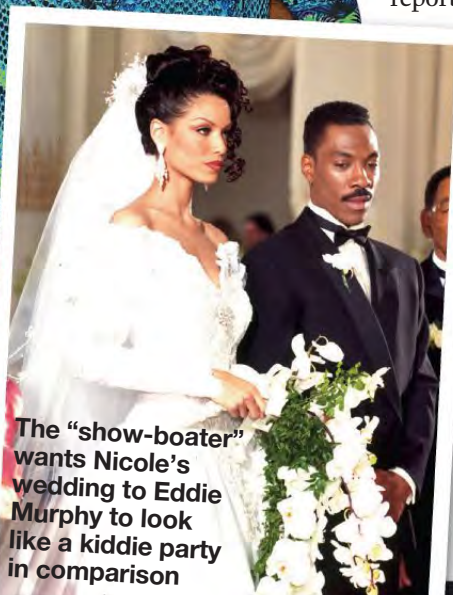

The competition to be the show's top dog has already caused problems – and it could get worse.

AS THE ENQUIRER RECENTLY

reported, Kelly's people have been furious because Michael is taking credit for the show's recent ratings surge, say sources. In addition, he's planning to buy a $25 million apartment near their studio, another “look at me” tactic that apparently has Kelly's crew rolling their eyes.

Said the source: “It's no secret that Michael is trying to hog the lime-light – and his celebrity wedding is the topper.”

MELANIE LOSES — BY A NECK!

HERE's some news to gobble up! Former "Charlie's Angel" Jaclyn Smith and "Body Double" star Melanie Griffith are running "neck and neck" in the cosmetic surgery department — but Jaclyn is the winner at pushing back the hands of time.

AS THESE PHOTOS REVEAL, Melanie, 56, appears to have borrowed her neck from a turkey, but Jaclyn, 68, looks youthful, with a smooth, unwrinkled neck. Ironically, Melanie starred in one episode of the plastic surgery TV drama "Nip/Tuck" in 2010. But if she learned anything from that experience, it didn't show when she was recently photographed at E. Baldi restaurant in Beverly Hills. Meanwhile, although she has not admitted to plastic surgery, Jaclyn is on record as having no objection to it. Detroit-area plastic surgeon Dr. Tony Youn believes she's gone under the knife with outstanding results.

"I've always said that good plastic surgery is so good that you can't tell it's been done," said Dr. Youn, who never treated Jaclyn. "She doesn't have any of the telltale signs of plastic surgery, except that her age gives her away. In my opinion, that's good work!"

RUMER WILLIS is hooked on her mom Demi Moore's bizarre New Age lifestyle – and it's destroyed her romance with "New Normal" star Jayson Blair, an insider says.

Jayson, 30, dumped Bruce Willis' 25-year-old daughter after he could no longer stand her newfound love of mystical crystals, chanting, meditation and a form of yoga she practices with her "Striptease"–star mom while wearing a white turban.

"Jayson got fed up with Rumer's wacky alternative practices," revealed a close source. "He tried his best to go along with her, but it's just not his bag."

OVER THE PAST SEVERAL months, Rumer repaired her rocky relationship with her mom, the source says, and the closer they became, the more she dove into Demi's practice of reciting Sanskrit scriptures and studying Eastern mysticism.

Apparently, it all grew too weird for Jayson, who'd been dating Rumer for a year.

Rumer's NOT 'NORMAL' enough for beau

Demi's wacky daughter DUMPED by sitcom hunk

"He missed doing normal, 'couple things' like making dinner, going to movies and enjoying a glass of wine," said the source. "Rumer even swore off caffeine and alcohol."

In a show of togetherness this past June, Jayson reportedly accompanied 51-year-old Demi and Rumer on a spiritual pilgrimage to New Mexico. They prayed, meditated, slept in a teepee and held a seance to contact Demi's late mom, Virginia Guynes.

"After the seance, Jayson began having second thoughts about a future with Rumer," revealed the source. "She told him if he couldn't accept her the way she was, they should part ways. And that's exactly what happened."

Jennifer Lawrence doesn't know what Julia Roberts' problem is, say sources

JENNIFER SLAMS JEALOUS JULIA!

"JULIA who?" Oscar winner Jennifer Lawrence lashed out after Julia Roberts questioned whether the "Hunger Games: Catching Fire" star was fit to take her place as "America's Sweetheart."

Now a bitter feud has erupted between the box-office beauties. Sources say Jennifer, 23, brushed off 46-year-old Julia's remarks as "sour grapes" because the "Pretty Woman" star is over the hill!

"JENNIFER TOLD A PAL, 'I don't know what her problem is. I never said a bad word about her in my life,'" said a source.

A friend added: "As far as Jennifer's concerned, Julia can keep the damn label of 'America's Sweetheart'!"

"She's not interested in it, and she could care less what Julia thinks of her."

Julia – an Oscar winner for the 2000 drama "Erin Brockovich" – publicly claims to be a fan of Jennifer, who took home an Academy Award for last year's "Silver Linings Playbook."

'Hunger Games' star FIRES BACK in battle of beauties

BUT MOM OF three Julia got sarcastic when talking about Jennifer to an MTV News reporter recently. "She shoots flaming arrows," she said about Jennifer's role as warrior teen Katniss in the "Hunger Games" blockbusters. "Is this a new cupid tactic?"

Then Julia added: "I think she's fabulous, but she seems cooler than me. Isn't she too cool to be America's Sweetheart?"

The source concluded: "Julia's just jealous of Jennifer because she's Hollywood's new 'It Girl.'"

"Jennifer's attitude is that Julia needs to grow up."

ENQUIRER WORLD EXCLUSIVE

EXHAUSTED from overwork and a punishing travel schedule, a rail-thin Angelina Jolie suffered a frightening collapse on her Australian film set!

Dramatic photos captured the moment when the black-clad Oscar winner crumbled to the ground while directing the World War II-era drama "Unbroken."

Sources say terrified crew and cast members rushed to Angelina's side, fearing she'd actually died. But the 38-year-old actress brushed off their concerns and resumed working.

Now friends, family members and even medical experts are concerned that Angelina – who underwent a double mastectomy and breast reconstructive surgery earlier this year – could suffer severe heart problems if she doesn't cut back on her grueling pace.

"Angelina's been putting herself through the wringer, and it's taken a severe physical toll on her body," said a source.

"She's been working around the clock – directing at least nine to 12 hours a day and looking after her kids.

"She's dropped to a skeletal 93 pounds, and being so thin can place a tremendous amount of pressure on the heart.

"Angelina could easily suffer a heart attack and die!"

The "Salt" star's latest health scare unfolded on Dec. 2 while she was directing several actors dressed as soldiers while they rehearsed a scene.

As she was showing them what she wanted them to do, her legs buckled, her head rocked back and she slumped to her knees, sources say.

"When Angelina dropped to the ground, some of the cast and crew weren't sure what was going on," said the source. "At first, they thought she was play-acting. Then, they rushed to her side, believing she was seriously ill – or worse, dead!

"She was sickly pale and gasping for air. But Angie refused to be taken to the hospital. After she composed herself, she assured everyone she was fine and went right back to work."

Despite Angelina's quick recovery, medical experts warn that her extremely low body weight puts a dangerous strain on her heart.

"She may not be getting enough nutrients, including essential vitamins, minerals and fluids, to keep her heart healthy," Dr. Gabe Mirkin – a board-certified physician from Orlando, Fla., and author of "The Healthy Heart Miracle" who has not treated the actress – told

The ENQUIRER.

"When the heart is deprived of these essential nutrients, it can increase one's risk of heart attack."

Angelina's arduous travel schedule could also have a potentially life-threatening impact, medical experts say.

She's crisscrossed the Pacific Ocean numerous times since September, when she scouted "Unbroken" locations in Hawaii and Australia, jetted to Hong Kong to meet up with fiancé Brad Pitt, and then flew back to Australia to work.

In November, Angelina flew to California to attend the Governors Awards in Hollywood with Brad, 49, and their son Maddox, 12. Afterward, she immediately headed back to the "Unbroken" set in Australia.

"The constant air travel increases her risk of dehydration," noted Dr. Mirkin.

Angie was sickly pale and gasping for air, according to a source

Being so thin can place a amount of pressure on the heart”

"That can cause an imbalance of the body's electrolytes, potentially causing life-threatening swelling of the brain and seizures.

"In addition, she's probably not getting enough sleep, which research shows can cause a multitude of health problems."

Dr. Craig Title, a weight-loss specialist from New York City who has not treated Jolie added: "Being significantly underweight can be very unhealthy. It can cause malnutrition leading to osteoporosis, iron deficiency anemia, loss of potassium which leads to impaired heart and muscle function, hormone imbalance and infertility.

"MALNUTRITION CAN ALSO CAUSE HEART arrhythmia due to muscle wasting which can be life-threatening."

Experts say that an average woman of Angelina's 5-foot-7 height should weigh between 130 and 140 pounds. But maintaining a healthy weight has been a constant struggle for the "Mr. & Mrs. Smith" star.

In 2009, we reported the mother of six had dropped to 104 pounds. And as we recently revealed, an emaciated Angelina feared she had as few as three years to live and secretly compiled a "bucket list" of goals to complete before she died.

Her on-set collapse happened shortly after Brad flew back to England following a visit to Australia, where he'd spent Thanksgiving and Pax's 10th birthday on Nov. 29.

Sources say Angelina was beginning to show signs of exhaustion while the whole family was together but refused to let it ruin the fun, said the source. She joined Brad and the kids for an outing aboard a luxury yacht in Sydney Harbor as well as a "Roar & Snore" adventure at the Taronga Zoo that included visits to the animal attractions followed by a sleepover.

"Angelina put on a brave face, even though she was dead tired," said the source.

"She especially didn't want to share her physical problems with Brad because she knew he'd be worried sick."

When Angie collapsed, the source says Brad panicked and wanted to fly straight back to Australia, but she convinced him to fulfill his obligations on his set before joining her.

Added the source: "Brad now plans to rush back to Australia as soon as his film 'Fury' wraps in England."

DOG CHAPMAN REUNITES WITH LONG-LOST SON

Wesley Chapman said his mom put him in a hospital for an extended stay when he was 6, then his maternal grandmother raised him

The ENQUIRER helps bring them together AFTER 20 YEARS

“It’s not the ideal Hollywood story – meeting your dad and everything’s better”

“I’d like to thank The ENQUIRER for getting me back together with my father again.”

In an amazingly candid exclusive interview, Wesley Chapman, 33, the son of TV “Bounty Hunter” Duane “Dog” Chapman, revealed how a shocking ENQUIRER expose of his father helped them to reunite after more than two decades.

But he confesses that the reunion with his famous dad hasn’t been easy.

WESLEY – THE SON OF DOG AND the second of his five wives, Anne Tegnell, said he had not seen his dad since he was just 1 year old – and Wesley said his mom put him into a children’s hospital for an extended stay when he was 6, and he wound up being raised by his maternal grandmother.

But everything changed in 2007 when we ran a bombshell exclusive revealing Dog’s racist rants on a taped phone conversation. The bounty hunter’s repeated use of the N-word led TV sponsors to drop him, and A&E pulled the plug on his show for four months.

“All of a sudden, my dad was everywhere, on every magazine cover and TV channel,” Wesley told The ENQUIRER.

“I realized then that I needed to find out about him. Am I like my dad or not?”

At the age of 27, Wesley caught up with Dog at a Los Angeles toy drive.

“We got into an elevator, looked at each other and said, ‘Hello,’” recalled Wesley. “He looked at (his fifth wife) Beth and said, ‘He’s my son.’”

“That was it.”

Wesley said he hadn’t even known who his biological father was until he was 11. After divorcing Dog, his mother married a man who Wesley claims made his life miserable. He said he became suicidal and began lashing out.

But Wesley, now engaged to Jodie Jensen, overcame his stormy childhood and is a successful marketing entrepreneur and motivational expert based in California. He also has two children – daughter Chloe, 8, and 4-year-old son Peyton.

While Wesley appeared on three episodes of Dog’s now-canceled TV show, he intends to keep his dad’s family at arm’s length.

“Their family is a real dysfunctional mess,” he said. “It’s not the ideal Hollywood story – meeting your dad and everything’s better.”

“I am the oddball in the Chapman family. I’m not a drinker or drug user. I never had to fight either of those addictions. I don’t think my dad realizes what his demons are.”

Still, Wesley seems to cherish his budding relationship with his dad.

“He’s done some really nice things for me,” said Wesley. “There are times when we don’t hear from him for six months, but he never forgets birthdays and is always texting and calling on the holidays.”

“I’m hoping that someday, when the dust settles, my dad can just be my dad and not have that ‘Bounty Hunter’ persona get in the way.”

Wesley, with fiancée Jodie, Dog and Beth, seems to cherish his relationship with his dad, but he prefers to keep his dysfunctional family at arm’s length

BEAUTY GONE BAD

FORMER model Traci Vaillancourt was once a drop-dead-gorgeous girl with a promising future. But her life spiraled out of control after a rare blood disorder robbed her of her looks – and now she’s awaiting trial in a coldblooded cop-killing case.

After struggling for years with addiction, homelessness and the heartbreaking transformation of her appearance, the 34-year-old hit rock bottom over Labor Day weekend when her drug-crazed boyfriend allegedly killed a police officer before turning the gun on himself and Traci.

We tried and tried to help her”

“It’s a tragedy,” said Traci’s sister, Vicki King. “We tried and tried to help her – but you can’t help someone who won’t help themselves.”

The heartbreaking story unfolded after Traci and her boyfriend, Timothy Walker, 35, were stranded on the side of the road in Draper, Utah, near Salt Lake City.

WALKER, ALLEGEDLY HIGH ON METH, had flattened the passenger-side front tire by driving their Volvo over a curb, a stop sign, a large rock and then through a fence.

Draper Police Sgt. Derek Johnson pulled up to see if he could help the stranded motorists. But before he even got the chance to exit his cruiser, cops claim Walker shot him through the open front passenger-side window.

As Johnson, a 32-year-old father of a young son, tried to drive away despite a gunshot wound to his chest, Walker allegedly continued firing at his car. The critically wounded officer radioed for help but lost control of his vehicle and crashed into a wooded area about two blocks away before dying.

Meanwhile, Walker allegedly shot Traci in the back and then turned the gun on himself. Both survived, and Walker was charged with first-degree felony aggravated murder plus attempted homicide. Traci wound up with two felony counts of obstructing justice for lying to investigators about the tragedy.

Vicki said her sister Traci had struggled with addiction to prescription drugs for nearly a decade – ever since she started taking painkillers to deal with swelling from a blood disorder that also destroyed her cover-girl looks.

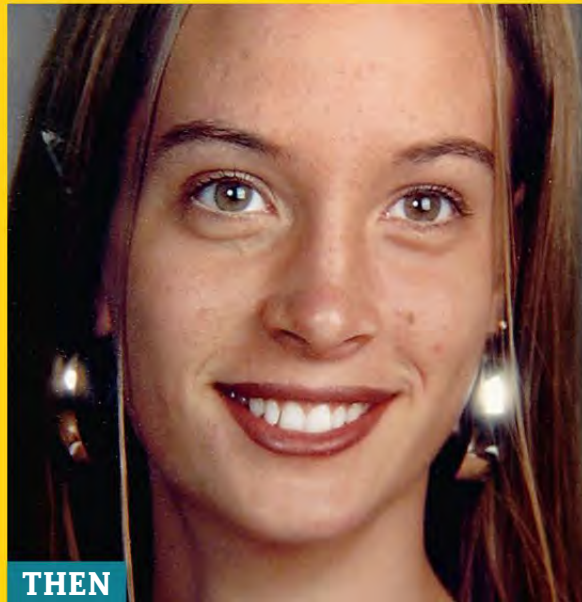

“She would cry, ‘I never pictured my life turning out like this,’” recalled

Vicki, who added that she knew something was off when Traci and Walker showed up at her house the day before the killing. Vicki said the two appeared to be on drugs, and Walker showed off his arsenal of weapons – daggers in his socks, a machete in the side pocket of his backpack and a gun. She gave them $4.50 from her purse, and the two left. The following day, cops say Walker gunned down Sgt. Johnson in cold blood.

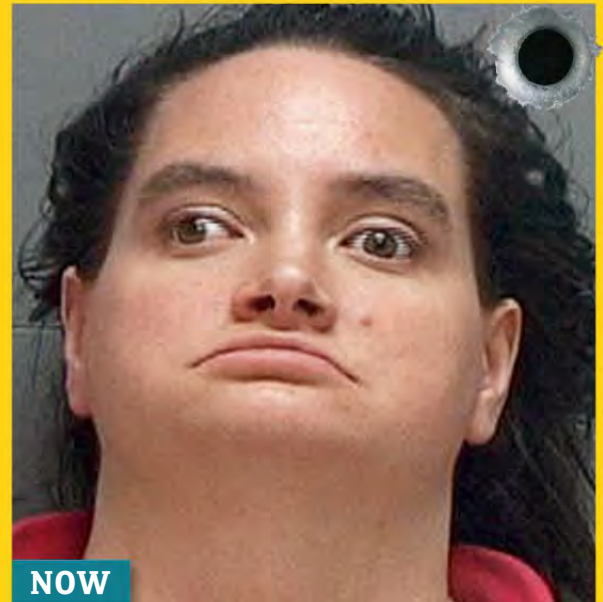

More than a thousand mourners showed up for the beloved officer’s public viewing. “There’s been a huge outpouring from everyone in the community,” said Draper Police Chief Bryan Roberts.

District Attorney Sim Gill added: “Sgt. Johnson wanted to do nothing but help out. The death penalty is on the table in this case.”

HE's been caught with a hot young blonde, she's been seen without her wedding ring – and now friends fear this will be Will and Jada Smith's last Christmas together!

Despite repeated claims there's no trouble in paradise, a source says the high-profile pair could be headed for a whopping $215 million divorce.

“Will and Jada are trying to put on a good front in public, but behind the scenes, they're having major troubles,” said a source close to the couple, whose 16th wedding anniversary is Dec. 31.

“If this marriage lasts beyond the holidays, it will be a miracle.”

Although a spokesperson for Jada denied that the couple's marriage is troubled, the “Men in Black” hunk, 45, sent the rumor mill into high gear when he frolicked bare-chested with his gorgeous “Focus” co-star, 23-year-old Margot Robbie. The two posed for a series of suggestive pictures at a New Orleans party in late October.

A SOURCE SAYS WILL also carried the Aussie actress piggy-back-style out of the bash, and the two disappeared for the rest of the night. Will's reps denied an illicit affair, and Robbie denied it as well. But Jada, 42, struck back quickly, popping up without her wedding ring at a Los Angeles gala.

Feisty Jada also made a statement in her band Wicked Wisdom's video for the song “Stuck.” In it, she takes off her wedding and engagement rings and lets them fall to the floor while singing: “So long for you to stay, but this time, there's just no way.”

Then she adds: “Now it's time to end this story!” But by the end of

Will and Jada's massive compound in Calabasas, Calif.

WILL & JADA $215M DIVORCE BOMBSHELL

Troubled couple HEADING FOR THEIR LAST CHRISTMAS TOGETHER – fear pals

the video, Jada’s wedding and engagement rings are firmly in place.

Desperate to silence rumors of a split, Will and Jada showed up together to celebrate his son Trey’s 21st birthday in Las Vegas on Nov. 10.

But they spent Thanksgiving apart with Jada rocking a pink bikini while vacationing in Hawaii with their children – Jaden, 15, and Willow, 13. At the same time, Will was at work in Argentina, where he posed arm-in-arm with Margot and waved for two flirty beauties to join him in his Buenos Aires hotel room. But the source says he’s desperate to avoid a divorce.

“Will has more to lose since he was the major breadwinner and they’d likely have to split things in half,” explained the source. And that could include proceeds from the sale of their massive estate in Calabasas, Calif.

Will has also previously stated that “divorce just can’t be an option.” Meanwhile, Jada just doesn’t feel that she has as much reason to stay married.

“She’s telling friends that she’s thinking of filing for divorce and having a Happy New Year – without Will!”

★ A history of sudden drops in blood pressure when a person stands after lying down could be linked to the most common form of irregular heartbeat – atrial fibrillation.

Experts discovered the early warning signal in a study of more than 12,000 people, ages 45 to 64.

As a result, researchers hope physicians use their finding and “go the extra step to see if something more serious is going on when patients experience rapid blood pressure fluctuations,” says Dr. Sunil K. Agarwal of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

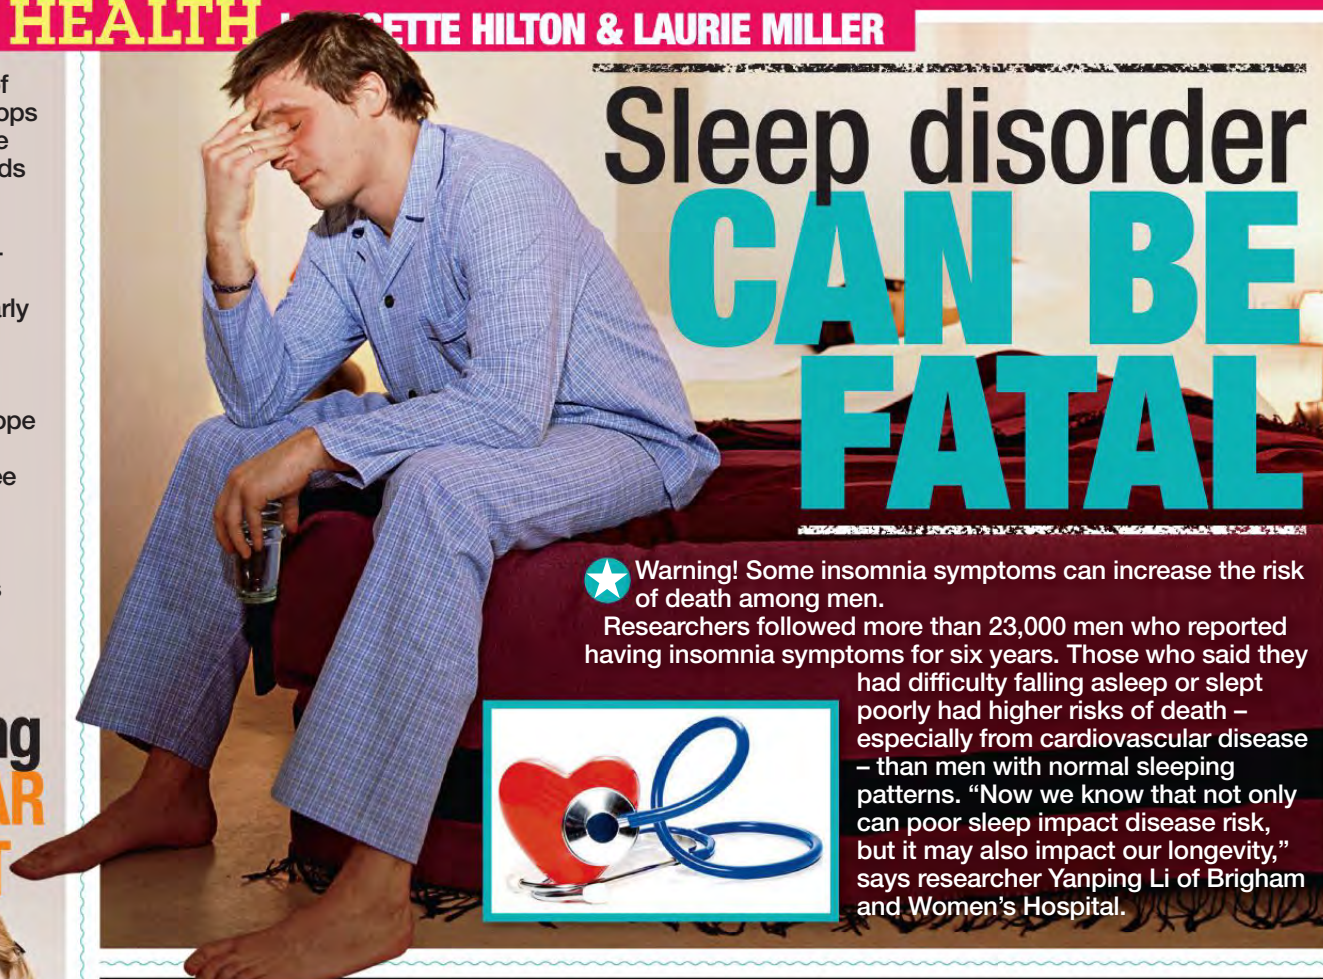

Early warning OF IRREGULAR HEARTBEAT

Fight winter EYE DAMAGE

★ Winter is the worst time of the year for the skin around your eyes – in fact, experts say the lack of sunlight and bitter cold can actually make eyes look five years older!

But a remarkable product, called Hylexin, can help banish the puffiness and dark circles that come with the coldest season. The cream, produced by skincare giant Bremenn Research Labs, uses a powerful combination of plant-based bioflavonoids, peptides and botanical extracts to work its magic. Hylexin is available at Kohl's for $59.

Sleep disorder CAN BE FATAL

★ Warning! Some insomnia symptoms can increase the risk of death among men.

Researchers followed more than 23,000 men who reported having insomnia symptoms for six years. Those who said they had difficulty falling asleep or slept poorly had higher risks of death – especially from cardiovascular disease – than men with normal sleeping patterns. “Now we know that not only can poor sleep impact disease risk, but it may also impact our longevity,” says researcher Yanping Li of Brigham and Women's Hospital.

★ The U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved a device that helps reduce the frequency of epileptic seizures in patients who have not responded well to medications.

The small device, called an RNS Stimulator, is implanted under the scalp and is connected to electrodes that are placed in the brain where the seizures are believed to originate.

“The neurostimulator detects abnormal electrical activity in the brain and responds by delivering electrical stimulation intended to normalize brain activity before the patient experiences seizure symptoms,” explains Christy Foreman, a director in the FDA's Center for Devices and Radiological Health.

EPILEPSY breakthrough

Added benefits OF WEIGHT LOSS SURGERY

★ Gastric bypass not only leads to significant weight loss – it also helps Type 2 diabetics cut their risk of heart attack and stroke.

Cleveland Clinic researchers tracked 131 obese people with diabetes for six years after they had a gastric bypass. They found the surgery reduced patients' risks of heart attack, stroke, kidney disease and death from cardiovascular disease.

What's more, patients also experienced remission of their diabetes.

“This study emphasizes that gastric bypass dramatically changes the trajectory of many chronic diseases associated with diabetes and improves multiple cardiovascular risk factors in the long term,” notes Dr. Stacy A. Brethauer.

MEREDITH VIEIRA is praying an experimental drug will save her husband, whose health continues to deteriorate from his decades-long struggle with multiple sclerosis, a source says.

AILING RICHARD COHEN, 65, is legally blind and gets around with a cane, but Meredith, 59, says he'll soon enter a clinical trial for a therapy using his own stem cells.

The treatment "has not been done with MS before," she recently told Bravo talk-show host Andy Cohen.

"Fingers crossed that it will be successful and maybe at least it will stop the illness at this point."

A source close to the valiant TV veteran told The ENQUIRER: "Meredith is desperate to prolong Richard's life. She's watched him struggle for so many years, taking medications that haven't helped. "It's been difficult for her. She felt helpless."

Cohen was diagnosed with MS at the age of 25. Despite that, he went on to an Emmy-winning career as a TV news producer and fathered three children with Meredith.

But the incurable disease, which attacks the body's central nervous system, continued its relentless assault, affecting his vocal cords, arms and legs. He's also successfully battled two bouts with colon cancer.

"Meredith has always put on a brave front with Richard and their kids," said the source. "She never complains, but she sees Richard's health getting worse every day and she's terrified that he'll die if doctors don't find something to help him soon. "She's praying this experimental treatment works!"

MEREDITH PRAYS FOR MIRACLE

TV star tries experimental drug to save MS-stricken husband

Rehearsals for her Christmas tour with brother Donny helped Marie fight through the pain

MARIE HIT WITH ANOTHER TRAGEDY

Singer rocked by death of 'second dad'

MARIE OSMOND has been shattered by the death of the man she called her "second dad," and friends fear Marie could be breaking down!

A source says the Nov. 23 passing of "Pap" – her best friend's father, 78-year-old Richard Roman – has already sent Marie, 54, into a depression.

"Marie is fragile around the holidays – she's been that way since losing her son Michael," a source told The ENQUIRER. "She just can't handle the death of another person that close to her, especially at this time of year."

Michael committed suicide at age 18 in 2010, and it nearly drove a depressed Marie into a mental institution, said the source.

"Since Pap's death, those close to Marie have noticed the same symptoms – lack of sleep, weeping, anxiety," from when Michael died, said the source. "We're all worried sick about her."

After Marie's beloved father George Viri Osmond died in 2007, she began turning to Pap for fatherly advice. And when

Pap passed on, Marie wrote on Twitter: "My girlfriend of 44 years, Patty, lost her dad. He was a second dad to me. Praying for her and Mom."

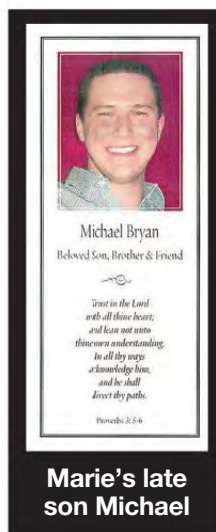

Marie couldn't attend Roman's funeral on Nov. 25 due to rehearsals for her Christmas tour with brother Donny, and that only added to her heartbreak, said the source. But with the Christmas tour's success and her fifth year of shows with Donny at the Flamingo in Las Vegas kicking off Jan. 14, Marie seems to be fighting through her pain, said the source.

"As long as she's working, Marie doesn't have the time to dwell on Pap's death," a pal told The ENQUIRER. "Besides that, she'll soon be a first-time grandmother, and that's sure to help her to get through this difficult time." by JOHN BLOSSER

Anna Camp and Skylar Astin

Ground Floor

Thursday, Dec. 26, 10 p.m. ET, TBS

The “Romeo and Juliet”-esque workplace romance between hotshot executive Brody (Skylar Astin) from the top floor and gorgeous ground-floor worker Jenny (Briga Heelan) is threatened when Heather (guest star Anna Camp), Brody’s ultra-competitive ex-girlfriend from business school, comes back into the picture. With Jenny worried that business savvy Heather is a better match for Brody, the sparks really begin to fly when they all take the stage for karaoke. Meanwhile, Mr. Mansfield (the hilariously expressive John C. McGinley, “Scrubs”) tries to get in touch with his feminine side in this kooky corporate comedy from the creators of “Scrubs” and “2 Broke Girls.”

JENNIFER ESPOSITO was pushed by publishers to pen a blistering tell-all about her “Blue Bloods” co-stars and baffling four-month marriage to Bradley Cooper – but instead she decided to help others afflicted with the serious health problem that led to her being dumped by the hit CBS cop drama.

Sources tell The ENQUIRER that the 40-year-old beauty has taken pen to paper to talk about her struggle with Celiac disease rather than a book about her disappointment in co-stars Tom Selleck and Donnie Wahlberg and details about her union to Cooper.

Bradley Cooper

“JENNIFER WAS UNDER A LOT of pressure from publishers to reveal secrets from her personal life, but she’s always taken the high road,” a friend told The ENQUIRER.

The actress enjoyed a robust 20-year career in TV and movies before signing on in 2010 to play Det. Jackie Curatola on “Blue Bloods,” which revolves around a family of New York City cops.

But just a year later, she was diagnosed with Celiac disease, an autoimmune disorder that causes intense digestive distress and pain. The ailment affects some 2.2 million Americans and is triggered by the gluten found in grains such as wheat, rye and barley. It can be deadly if left untreated.

As Jennifer struggled with the agonizing disease during her second season on the show, she was put on unpaid leave. But since she was still under contract, she was not allowed to seek other TV work.

What hurt even more, say sources, was the relative silence from her co-stars Selleck and Wahlberg, who she believed could have backed her more strongly in her war with CBS. She eventually left the show amid her bitter dispute with show executives.

“Despite that, Jennifer won’t call them out in her book,” said an insider.

She’ll also refrain from discussing why her 2006 marriage to 38-year-old hunk Cooper crumbled so quickly.

Explained her friend: “Jennifer believes her story lies in how she battled her disease, not how the actors in her life let her down.”

— set insider

BOSSY Rebel Wilson is turning the set of “Super Fun Night” into a not-so-super fun place for her co-stars!

Insiders say the plus-size funnyparty has an ego as big as her girth, and she’s been super-bossy and controlling with the ABC show’s other leading ladies – Lauren Ash and Liza Lapira. The three women play nerdy best friends Kimmie (Rebel), Marika (Lauren) and Helen-Alice (Liza), who set aside every Friday as a “girls’ night.”

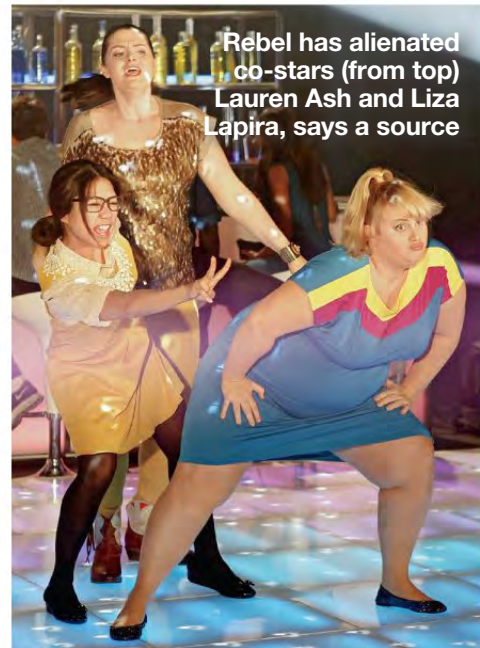

“Rebel can be a bitch, and she’s already managed to completely alienate Liza and Lauren,” said a source. “She can’t get her mind around the concept of an ensemble comedy.

“SINCE SHE CREATED THE SHOW and also writes and produces, she buzzes around the lot in a golf cart at breakneck speed like she’s God’s gift to television. She’s usually barking orders on her cell phone and driving one-handed. Twice she nearly slammed into Lauren and didn’t even apologize. She dominates the crew the same way and has developed a reputation as a bulldozer.”

But the biggest complaint among the cast and crew is that the 27-year-old Aussie actress insists on staying in character on the set. “She completely drops her

Australian accent whenever she’s on the lot,” the source continued. “She speaks like an American and insists that she be addressed as ‘Kimmie’ at all times.

“One time Liza forgot and walked into Rebel’s dressing room, relaying the message, ‘Reb, they need you in wardrobe.’ Rebel screamed, ‘I’m Kimmie, damn it! Kimmie! My name is Kimmie!’”

Lauren and Liza are no shrinking violets, says the source, and they frequently butt heads with Rebel.

“There have been a couple of screamfests,” the source divulged. “Rebel has a habit of changing lines of dialogue or reassigning a line from one character to another minutes before shooting. It throws everyone off.

“SHE SEEMS TO THRIVE ON CHAOS, and both actresses have threatened to quit. Rebel doesn’t care. She’ll say, ‘Don’t bother, I’m the boss. I’ll have you fired.’”

The full-figured comedic actress was a huge star in Australia before scene-stealing performances in “Pitch Perfect” and “Bridesmaids” made her a hit in the U.S.

“Rebel’s incredibly talented and one of the funniest women in TV today,” the source said. “She uses her weight as a comic advantage, which obviously endears her to audiences and her growing legion of fans. But success definitely has gone to her head, and she treats her co-stars like the hired help.”

Part of the problem, says the source, is that Rebel has her eye on the big screen.

“Rebel ultimately wants to be a movie star and she’s getting a lot of offers,” the source added. “So even if the series tanks, she has nothing to lose.”

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

DON RICKLES

AMPUTATION NIGHTMARE!

DON RICKLES is facing an amputation horror!

The legendary 87-year-old funnyman has a frightening flesh-eating disease, and experts told The ENQUIRER he may have to lose a limb to survive.

In a shocking disclosure in early December, Don's handlers revealed that the King of Insults was being treated for a potentially deadly infection, called necrotizing fasciitis, in his leg.

"Don underwent three surgical debridements – a removal of the infected tissue – and a skin graft, which forced him to stay off his feet for a while," his rep said.

While the official line is that the condition was discovered quickly and treated successfully, medical experts told The ENQUIRER there is a good chance the vicious disease will return – and doctors may have to amputate the limb to save his life.

Alabama-based infectious disease expert Dr. Donald H. Marks, who has not treated Rickles, told The ENQUIRER: "This is an insidious disease that may come back with a vengeance. Rickles is definitely at risk of losing a limb."

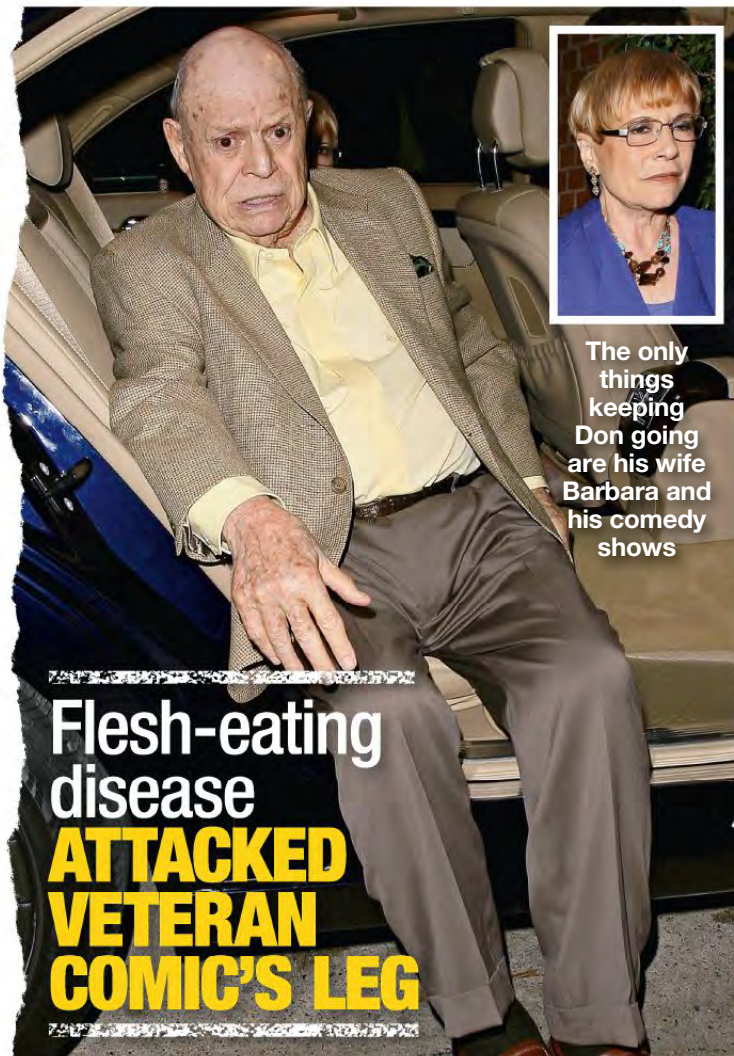

Don with late son Larry

And Dr. Anthony Youn, a plastic surgeon in Troy, Mich., who also has not examined the comic, said that "necrotizing fasciitis is quite possibly the worst infection someone can get. It can kill within hours if not treated."

Rickles hasn't been the same since his son Larry died of respiratory failure at age 41 two years ago, according to a source, who adds that the only things that keep him going right now are the love of his wife of 48 years, Barbara, and his comedy shows.

SARAH PALIN SPARKS

CHER FAMILY WAR!

CHER made a vulgar slap at Sarah Palin that's sparked World War III with the outspoken diva's two kids!

In an explosive message on Twitter, Cher sniped that the former Alaska governor's picture could be found in the dictionary "under dumb c word."

The singer's son Elijah Blue Allman was so appalled that he posted an apology for his mom's "ugly remarks" on Twitter, a source says, but then Cher blew up!

"Elijah thought his mom's comments were classless and took it upon himself to issue an apology," a source told The ENQUIRER. "But when Cher found out, she immediately called Elijah and lashed out at him."

To make matters worse, Cher dragged her transgender son Chaz, 44, into the fight, thinking he'd take her side, according to the source.

"But Chaz ended up telling Cher and Elijah that they were both wrong," said the source. "Now, the three of them are fighting like cats and dogs – and it looks like there's no end in sight!"

It's not the first spat between the 67-year-old star and her kids.

AS THE ENQUIRER REPORTED, CHER AND ELIJAH, 37, clashed over his then-fiancee's involvement in the controversial Children of God religious sex cult. And Cher's oft-stormy relationship with Chaz has recently been strained over her disparaging remarks about Chaz's late father, Sonny Bono.

"Cher knew she was going to take some heat from Sarah Palin's supporters for blasting her on Twitter," said the source. "But she never imagined that she'd have fallout from her own children!"

Cher expected to take some heat from Palin supporters, but not her boys

SOLUTION TO COLORCROSS #49, SEE PAGE 56

EVERY day, Rob and Lisa Moss lived with the heart-breaking knowledge that a silent seizure could swiftly kill their beloved little boy, Evan.

They desperately wanted to get him a lifesaving service dog specially trained to spot epileptic seizures, but it would cost them a whopping $13,000, money they didn't have.

So the brave youngster took matters into his own hands. At the tender age of 7, he wrote a heartfelt book about how he so much wanted a service dog.

He included drawings he made and poured out his heart, noting: "The seizure dog will eat pizza with me."

Not only did people flock to buy his touching book, they donated enough money to provide a helper dog for him and several others!

Evan with his family

Evan, who's now 9, was born with a genetic disorder called tuberous sclerosis complex, which causes seizure-triggering tumors to grow in the brain and other parts of the body.

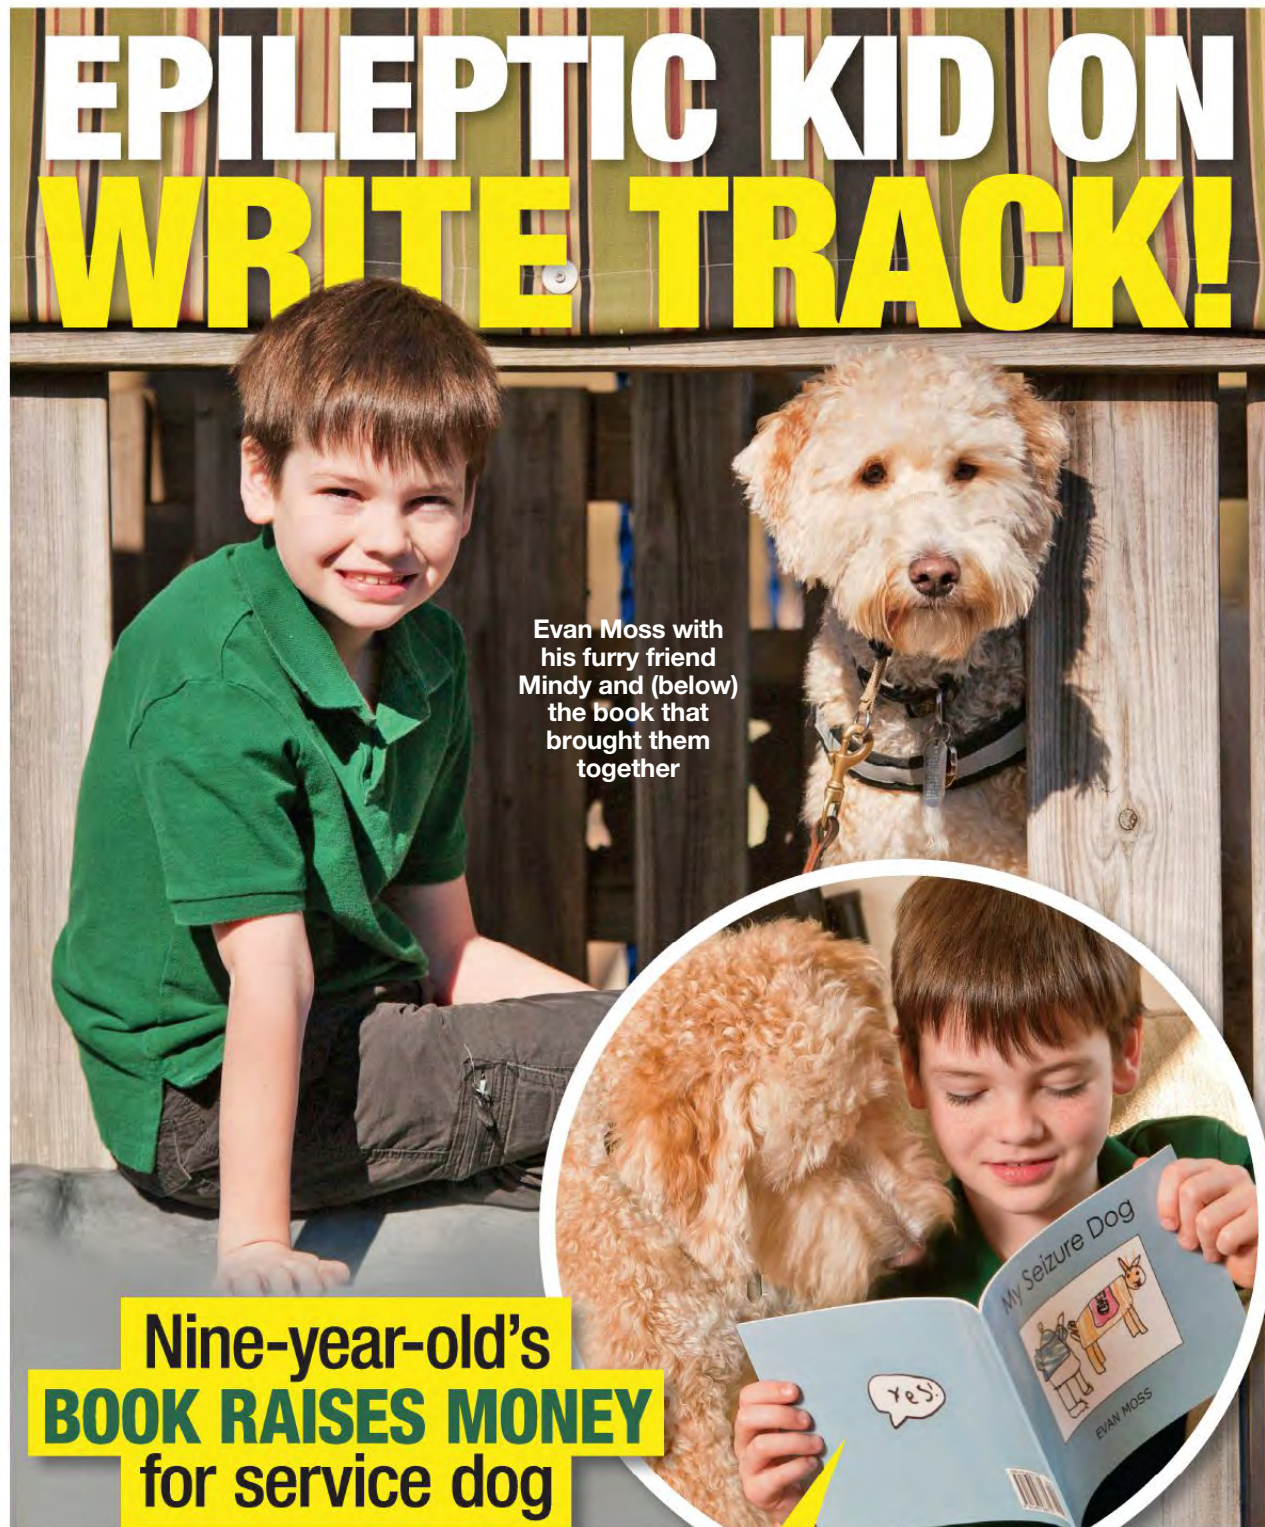

THE LORTON, VA., YOUNGSTER WAS forced to sleep with his parents at night so they could try to detect life-threatening attacks. Still, they lived in constant fear of missing one.

Rob and Lisa – who run a website called seizuretracker.com, which helps families with epileptic children – tried to come up with money to get their son a service dog through the nonprofit agency 4 Paws for Ability. Evan even wrote a 26-page book called My Seizure Dog as part of the application process to get a pooch.

Rob and Lisa eventually decided to try to raise money by self-publishing Evan's book, figuring if they could sell 150 copies at $10 apiece, it would at least be a start.

They arranged to have a book signing at a coffee shop near their home and, after the local media got wind of the event, more than 600 people showed up.

"There was a line stretching down

Evan Moss with his furry friend Mindy and (below) the book that brought them together the road and around the corner," recalled an astonished Lisa.

Between sales of the book and donations from people who'd heard about Evan's plight, the youngster raised a whopping $45,000.

It was not only enough money for Evan to get Mindy – a standard poodle/golden retriever mix – but also enough to help seven other children acquire service dogs.

Now Mindy goes everywhere with her young master and barks to alert his parents when she senses he's about to suffer a seizure.

The loving tail-wagger even goes to school with Evan, lying on the floor next to his desk in class.

"It's been amazing," said Lisa. "Our lives are finally getting back to normal. We feel so fortunate to have Mindy."

Added a delighted Evan: "I like hanging out with Mindy. She helps me when I have seizures."

"She likes to be under the covers with me. She's a great dog!"
